

Parenting Strategies for Facilitating Attachment And Sensory Integration

Presented by:

Dan Hughes, Ph.D., Jane Koomar, Ph.D., OTR/L

Thursday, April 15th, 2010

This one day workshop for parents, but also open to professionals, presents practical information on blending attachment parenting, dyadic developmental psychotherapy, with sensory integration strategies. Applicable to children who are adopted and those with trauma backgrounds as well as children who have difficulty bonding due to sensory processing disorder.

Location: Bentley University, Waltham, MA

Friday, April 16th, 2010

This one day workshop for thirty parents will provide small group practicums and additional lecture material. Area psychotherapists trained in Dan Hughes' model, OTA-Watertown occupational therapists familiar with Dan's work, and experts in sensory integration will assist during small group sessions to increase awareness of attachment and sensory processing challenges. Participants will develop sensory attachment strategies for one's own child to use at home.

Course limited to 30 participants. All participants must have attended April 15th.

Location: First Parish Unitarian Universalist Meeting House, Bedford, MA

Application forms will be available soon.

If you would like to receive an application form please send an email to info@otawatertown.com